

With a philosophy of family first and a focus on health and safety, I am pleased to introduce and welcome you to Whitecap Cleaning. We are a science-based microbial-control company founded to provide a portfolio of health and wellness services that tackle critical issues of safety and health for commercial (workplace) facilities, residential homes, and automobiles of all types.

Microorganisms are developing resistance to traditional cleaning protocols and disinfectants; the global pandemic of 2020 is unfortunately a “new normal” reality. Scientists have discovered that increasing dosage and frequency of toxic chemicals have contributed to the problem, making public facilities more vulnerable to high levels of cross-contamination and dangerous biofilm. This is where we step in.

We have partnered with Bactronix Corporation, an industry leader in providing non-toxic deep disinfecting services since 2011. Over this time, the company has become widely recognized for delivering excellent results in the areas of mold, fungus, bacteria, and pathogen remediation.

Whitecap Cleaning is here to provide all your support needs toward a goal of creating as safe and healthy workplace environment as possible and to restore confidence in society that workplaces and homes can once again be safe.

On behalf of the Whitecap Cleaning team, welcome, and please contact me anytime by emailing john@whitecapcleaning.com to discuss the portfolio of services we offer to fight the invisible enemy.

Regards,
